INTRODUCTION

Beginning at this date, it has been difficult for me to ascertain facts concerning the history, dates of birth, deaths, marriages, etc. of some branches of our family.

The early story of the Root family has been taken from the "Root Genealogy," published in 1870 and written by James Pierce Root. In this book I found records of our direct line of ancestry, from the birth of John Root in 1608 through the fifth generation.

*Philamelia Root, my great grandmother, born 1805, married William Hine. The story of the Hine family was found in the Hine Genealogy which is a history of Thomas Hine of Milford, Connecticut, 1639, and his descendants. The book was compiled by Robert C. Hine, Judge of the Municipal Court, St. Paul, Minnesota. It is very complete through eight generations and the collection of material for the genealogy took about fifteen years. It was published July 1, 1898.

The most reliable sources of early family history are the ancient church records of New England, which furnished dates of baptisms and marriages; and the town records, which gave dates of births, marriages and deaths, and which are often very accurate. As errors in dates are inevitable, to some extent, the compiler will not be held responsible for the mistakes of other copyists or of omissions.

I found information of the different branches of our family in the "Biographical Sketch of Portage and Summit Counties," also in Samuel A. Lane's, "Fifty Years and Over of Akron and Summit County," published in 1892.

The early histories of the Hall and Manso families were found in family records which my mother (Margaret Hall Hine Conaghan) had, and in letters that had been written to her when she was collecting material for a Hall genealogy that was being compiled by Mrs. Archibald Hall of Indianapolis. "Slate Lick Reunion" published in 1887 was also a wonderful source of information.

As a small child, I spent many happy days visiting grandfather and grandmother Hine on their farm. It was grandmother that took me visiting to see aunt Julia Bronson, uncle Daniel Hine, cousin John Hall and his wife, Cynthia. It was grandmother who talked of cousin El Hart, cousin Harriet Hall, cousin Sallie Harter, aunt Julia Minard, the Stilwells, and Albert Hall of Mogadore. Many other things I have remembered, such as the Root family reunion, which we all attended when I was a child; the trip father, mother, my brother Harry and I took to Chillicothe, Missouri, when I was six, to visit great grandmother Manso; and the summer that I spent in Pennsylvania visiting grandfather and grandmother (Ralston) Hall when I was twelve.

I have no information about the Atwood family before great-grandfather's time except that I have been told by my uncle, William Philo Hine, that Philo Atwood's father was named Ichabod Atwood.

The Thomas family history has been given to me by different branches of the family. I am especially appreciative of the efforts of Edwin C. Thomas in helping me complete the records. I am also indebted to Helen Norton McMillan for the use of The Root Genealogy and the History of the Hine family.

I have taken great pleasure in the preparation of this collection of facts, and I hope that it will give pleasure to our children, our grandchildren and other members of the family, although it is not by any means complete, except the direct line of ancestry of John and Bertha (Hine) Thomas.

INTRODUCTION

It was not with any desire or expectation of finding in the past history of our family any remarkably brilliant personage that I began the collection of the material for our "family tree," but merely a desire to satisfy a curiosity as to how far back and how completely the family could be traced in this country, and to preserve from loss information which we held as tradition rather than as a matter of record. Although I have not been successful in obtaining answers to all inquiries through correspondence, I wish to acknowledge and thank all who have furnished oral or written statements which have contributed to the production of this book.

SWANSEA, WALES

*David E. Thomas was born in Swansea, Glamorganshire, South Wales.

Following is an excerpt from an article in Holiday Magazine by Richard Llewellyn, 1951:

"The most traveled route to Wales is through London. Welshmen still call it Llundain, and gather for worship in their own tongue at the Great Chapels in Castle Street and Kings Cross built by subscription among thousands of immigrants from mountains and valleys.

"The opening of new lands took the greater number of them to America, Australia, and New Zealand.

"There is little of King Arthur's Wales, or his Welshmen, in the larger towns, though Swansea is the Welshest of the harbours."

Following is an excerpt from "History of Modern Wales" by David Williams.

"The Coal trade of Wales in the 18th century experienced a gradual and continuous expansion.

"The chief mines were located on the southwestern rim of the coal field where it touched the sea, first at Neath and then at Swansea.

"In the mid-eighteenth century, collieries were opened near Swansea, and in 1755 new copper works were built at Swansea. The Glamorgan Canal joined Cardiff to Merthyn and the Swansea Canal, along the River Tawe, linked the iron works of the upper Swansea valley with the port.

"With industrial development came the growth of towns. Merthyr, a small hamlet in 1760, had by 1801 become a town with a population of 7,705. The next town to its size was Swansea, which had a population of 6,831, and whose development had been gradual since some of its industries were old established. At one time, copper smelting was almost a Welsh monopoly; of the 18 copper works in Britain in 1860, seventeen were in the Swansea area. The Swansea metal exchange became the center of the copper trade of the whole world.

"But the decline set in when great sources of supply were found south of Lake Superior, and the American firms entered the market.

"But a metallurgical tradition remained strong in the Swansea district, and in 1902 nickle refining was started at Clydach, on the outskirts of Swansea, at the Mond Nickle Works, the largest of its kind in the world.

"The Swansea area has, in this way, always retained a far greater variety of industries than any other part of Wales."

So when the Thomas families came to America, it was the natural thing for them to settle in a coal mining community, and while Tallmadge might properly be called an agricultural town, it also achieved marked success as a mining town in the early days.

As early as 1808, coal was found in the southwestern part of the township. Timber was so abundant in those days that there was very little demand for coal as fuel.

From the year 1833 to 1840 considerable quantities of coal were mined for Akron, Cuyahoga Falls, and the home market. It is thought that for fifty years, the average output of the Tallmadge mines was at least 12,000 tons a year making a grand total of 600,000 tons.

There was a coal mine located on this farm of John W. Thomas (the first.) One of his sons Benjamin Thomas, called "Doc," operated the mine for his father. Also, there was a coal mine on the David E. Thomas property. He hired men to mine the coal which he sold and delivered. However, he devoted most of his time to farming.

CARDIFF

According to members of her family, Fannie E. (Thomas) Thomas, wife of David E. Thomas, was born in Cardiff which is located in Glamorganshire, South Wales, a distance of about fifty or sixty miles from Swansea, the birthplace of David E. Thomas.

The following information was found in H. V. Morton's book, "In Search of Wales."

"Cardiff is a beautiful and dignified city and is the most important city in Wales, and no man can pretend to have seen Wales unless he visits Cardiff and the county, whose minerals have drawn into it over one million, two hundred thousand beings. Cardiff grew up round Cardiff Castle, which is still its centre and the purchase of the adjoining Cathays Park from Lord Bute gave the Corporation the opportunity of grouping its civic buildings together in the very heart of the city. Cathays Park contains the finest group of public buildings in Great Britain.

Cardiff is an ancient Roman fortress which has grown into one of the greatest commercial cities of our time. One feature of Cardiff which must impress every stranger is the University and another splendid building in Cathays Park is that of the National Museum of Wales.

There is another Cardiff. You reach it over a long, dreary and rather sinister road. At the end of the road is the atmosphere of ships. Here are the great docks of Cardiff.

CARDIFF

It has, today, the largest and most modern coal transport system in the world and is the natural port of shipment for the miners of the Glamorganshire Valleys."

The first edition of H. V. Morton's book was published in 1932. It has been reprinted seventeen times. The Right Hon. David Lloyd George, reviewing "In Search of Wales" said: "The best travel book on Wales that I have ever read."

A LETTER TO OUR GRANDCHILDREN

BY BERTHA HINE THOMAS

Dear Susan, Robbie, Johnny and Billy Thomas; Barby, Ann, Brookie and David Brookhart; Joey and Jeannie Wells; Billy and Tommy Lambert; and Patsy Thomas:

To you, I am dedicating this book for I want you to know who you are. The following is a history of our own immediate family. I would like to have written a history of all of the members of the Thomas clan, but there are so many of us that I am leaving it to each individual family to carry on.

John Webster Thomas (your grandfather,) the son of David E. and Fannie E. Thomas, was born in Tallmadge, Ohio, on November 18, 1880. He first attended country school, then Buchtel Academy, and walked ten miles a day to attend Buchtel College, while studying for a bachelor's degree, majoring in chemistry. He graduated from Buchtel College (B.C.S.), now Akron University, in 1904.

After graduating, he worked for six months at the Quaker Oats Company, then about the same length of time at the Robinson Clay Products Company, while waiting for an opening at the B. F. Goodrich Company chemical laboratory where he was employed from 1905-1908. He became associated with The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company in 1908, and installed their first chemical laboratory and served as Chief Chemist (1908-1911.) He became Superintendant of Plants (1911-1919.) Diector of the Company (1916), Vice-President (1919-1932), President (1932-1938), President and Chief Executive (1938-42), Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive (1942-1946), Honorary Chairman, when he retired as Chief Executive (1946 to present date 1951). He has been awarded the Gold Medal of the American Institute of Chemists.

In June, 1945, the University of Akron awarded him the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Science. He was a member of the University of Akron Board of Directors from 1919 until his resignation in 1942, was elected Chairman in 1926, and continued to serve as such until his resignation. He also served for many years on the Board of the Akron City Hospital.

I was born in Tallmadge, Ohio, on March 9, 1884, christened Bertha Agnes Hine, but my small brother called me Buffa, then Buff - the name by which I was known until after I married your grandfather. Then I became known as the wife of John W. Thomas, and later I was often introduced as "the mother of the twins." Some members of my family now call me Buffie but to you all I am Grandma. I graduated from Tallmadge High School in 1901. My graduation gifts included a trip to Longmont, Colorado, and a new upright piano. After returning from a wonderful summer vacation, I continued my study of music for several years, but finally, even mother gave up in despair of my ever becoming a musician.

On October 25, 1906, your grandfather and I were married and came to Akron to live. Our first home was at 199 Glendale Avenue. I have had some interesting hobbies, and aside from housekeeping and raising my family, the one organization in which I have been most interested is the Women's Auxiliary Board of the City Hospital of Akron of which I have been an active member for nearly thirty years. Your grandfather and I were both members of the Tallmadge Congregational Church and later joined by letter the West Congregational Church of Akron.

Our first child, John Webster Thomas Jr., known to you as Jack, was born in Akron, Ohio, on November 10, 1907. He attended Spicer and Portage Path grade schools and graduated from West High School in 1925. National Honor Society. Attended Amherst College 1925-1927, member Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. Akron University 1927-1928. Kenyon College 1928-1930. Graduated from Kenyon P.H.B. Member of golf team, Sec. Senior Council and Dean's list two semesters. Attended The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company's college training class, summer 1927. European trip, summer 1930.

He was employed in the Purchasing Dept. of Firestone Steel Products Company 1930-1932, then in the tire company purchasing dept. 1932-1941. He was employed at the Nebraska Ordnance Plant in Fremont, Nebraska, as Purchasing Agent from 1941 to July, 1942, when he was inducted into the U.S. Army. In December, 1942, he went to O.C.S., Camp Lee, Virginia. Commissioned 2nd Lt., Q.M.C., March, 1943. Stationed at Jersey City Quartermaster Depot (Purchasing and Contracting Officer) 1943 - May 1946. Commissioned 1st Lt. March 1945.

In the spring of 1946, he returned to The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company and is now employed in the Purchasing Department as head of chemical and Liberian purchasing.

On November 30, 1946, he married Jean Rose Ulmer Brake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Ulmer of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. Jean's mother, Gladys (Carter) Ulmer, was the daughter of James Edward Carter and Emily Gay (Burroughs) Carter. The parents of Frank William Ulmer were William Frank Ulmer and Rose Ellen (Kerns) Ulmer. Jean was born in Akron, Ohio, christened Jean Rose Ulmer. She graduated from Cuyahoga Falls High School, January, 1936. National Honor Society. Graduated from Kent State University January, 1940, B. S. in Ed. (Honor List). Was president of Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority; President, Cardinal Key (National Educational Honor Society.)

After graduating, she became assistant instructor at training school in exchange for courses toward Master's Degree. From August, 1940, until 1941 she was employed at Yeager's Department Store as Assistant Advertising Manager and from January, 1941, to August, 1941, as Advertising Manager. From October, 1941 to May, 1946, she did free lance fashion art work and was staff artist on the Miami Beach Sun Tropics. She and Jack were married in 1946 and live at 289 Overwood Road, Akron, Ohio.

Jean is an active member of the Junior League of Akron. Her League activities include sewing for Family Service, writing for Radio Work Shop, art work on the League magazine and occupational therapy at Brecksville Veterans Hospital. Patsy, their daughter, was born January 27, 1950.

In 1909 your grandfather and I bought our own home which was located at 299 Spicer Street. Then, in 1915, we moved to 82 Atlas Street, now called North Rose Blvd. In the spring of 1919 we purchased our present home at 117 Edgerton Road, the one that you all know so well, which has been home to us for thirty-two years.

"Bob," Robert David Thomas, was born September 26, 1909, while we were living on Spicer Street. He attended the same grade schools as Jack, spent 2½ years at West High School, from January 1923 to June, 1925, then transferred to Asheville School, Asheville, North Carolina, and Graduated in June, 1927. He graduated from Amherst College, June, 1931, Bachelor of Arts (A.B.) Degree, member of Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity. European trip, summer 1930. After graduating from Amherst, he entered the Firestone College Training Class (factory) from July 31 to November 1931. The popular recreation and hobby of our entire family is golf. Your grandfather and I loved it and played "at" it for years, but Father Time finally stopped the game. However, this is a genealogy so I am closing with the lines of the poet -

"There's no power

In ancestry to make the foolish wise

The ignorant learned, the cowardly and base

Deserving our respect as brave and good.

Hence man's best wishes must be gained not given

His noblest name deserved, and not derived."

JOHN W. THOMAS FAMILY

John W. and Phoebe (James) Thomas came to America from Wales about 1848, with a family of five children.

They settled in Tallmadge on Brittain Road, just north of Thomas Road, in a stone house on the east side of the road.

We know that John W. Thomas was from a large family for his son, Benjamin, was the seventh son of a seventh son and, according to an old superstition, he was supposed to be endowed with certain healing powers, hence his nickname, "Doc."

One member of the family writes that John W. Thomas Jr., son of John W. and Phoebe (James) Thomas, was born in Pembrokeshire, Wales. Others say that the family came from Glamorganshire. The counties are adjoining.

H. V. Morton writes "In Search of Wales" -

"I am writing on a green hill in Pembrokeshire. Something uncanny has happened to Wales! This is not Wales - it is England. As soon as you cross the boundary from Cardiganshire into Pembrokeshire you seem to leave Wales behind. Pembrokeshire is that strangely-shaped portion of Wales on the extreme southwest, and if you look at a map you will see that the very names of the towns and villages in Pembrokeshire are English names.

"You might draw a line through this country - to the north are the difficult Welsh names, to the south are the easy, homely English ones. Pembrokeshire racially is to Wales rather as Ulster is to Ireland. It is a much older example of colonization. And it is the only attempt to anglicize Wales which has stood the test of time.

"It is one of the most interesting examples in the British Isles of a racial difference that has persisted through the centuries. This country, half English, half Welsh, is one of the curiosities of the British Isles."

TALLMADGE

Our ancestors, who came from distant lands, and settled in Tallmadge, Ohio, were closely identified with the Congregational Church, and many of their descendants are now living in Tallmadge, Akron and vicinity.

The following is a brief history of the early days of Tallmadge and the events leading up to the building of the church.

The survey of the Western Reserve lands east of the Cuyahoga River and Portage Path was completed for the Connecticut Land Company in 1797. Tallmadge, then unnamed, being designated as Town 2, Range 10.

In the twenty-fourth draft, at Hartford, Connecticut, in January, 1798, the township fell to a group of ten men. The first five were known as the Brace Company. The last five formed the Rockwell Company.

The members of the Rockwell Company, with the exception of Ephriam Starr, transferred their interest to Colonel Benjamin Tallmadge. This made the Brace Company, Tallmadge and Starr tenants in common of the entire township. In 1799, Rev. David Bacon of Woodstock, Conn., had been sent out by the Connecticut missionary society to work among the Indians near Detroit. After a number of discouraging years, he discontinued his work among the Indians to labor in behalf of the settlers of Western Reserve.

In 1806, Mr. Bacon bought a large part of the interest of the Brace Company and all the holdings of Ephriam Starr and Colonel Tallmadge. He named the township Tallmadge for the man who had owned the largest portion of it. Being an earnest believer in, and preacher of, the Christian religion, he conceived the idea of founding a community that should be in full sympathy with his own religious beliefs. On January 22, 1809 nine persons gathered in the home of David Bacon and organized a Church of Christ in Tallmadge.

In 1810, the first schoolhouse was built. It was used for school during the week and for church on Sundays.

Then in 1815, the Academy building was erected where the Congregational Church now stands. That building burned in 1820, and services then were held in barns and homes until 1821. Mr. Bacon's first work, before any settlements were made, was to resurvey and rearrange the lots and roads of the township.

At the center, a commodious public square of seven and one half acres was laid out, on which was to be the church, the school house, the store, the tavern and various mechanics' shops and private residences that were to form the future business section of the township and they have so existed up to the present day. The survey, ordered by Mr. Bacon, divided the township into great lots by north, east, south and west roads; also diagonal roads northeast, southeast, northwest and southwest; all roads leading to the center.

The educational plan provided for the school at the center and District Schools at each of the localities called "the six corners."

Pioneer Settlers of Tallmadge

Up to February, 1808, there were only nine persons in the township. Later came the Treats, *Hines, Carters, Sperrys, Hinmans, *Roots, Bronsons, et. al. The majority of the early residents of Tallmadge were from Connecticut, with a slight sprinkling from other New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. In the beginning, it was almost exclusively a Yankee town. In 1840 the population was 2,134.

The First Church Edifice

It was late in the year 1821 that the brethren of the Congregation of Tallmadge assembled to discuss the possibilities of building a meeting house.

Reverend Simeon W. Woodruff, who was then the minister, called the meeting to order. He offered to contribute $50, one fourth of his annual salary, toward the construction of a new building.

The historical accounts reveal that Rev. Woodruff's appeal had an immediate reaction. Brother Beach declared the new church should be a large one and have a steeple. Brother Oviatt offered to donate four walnut trees for pillars. Deacon Sackett offered a big whitewood tree which he guaranteed would make enough clapboards to cover the building. Brother Beach promised a cedar tree, that would make the shingles. Brother Hine offered stone from his farm for the foundation.

A motion was made and seconded that the church be built. The committee designated December 24, 1821 as the day to cut and draw the timber for the new meeting house.

Brother Beach, his enthusiasm still rising, offered a jug of whiskey to the man getting the first stick of timber on the ground. The formal dedication of the building did not take place until September 8, 1825. The cost of the edifice was estimated at $4,620.62. Practically $3,500. of this amount was donated in labor, lumber and wheat.

The building committee consisted of Captain Amos Seward, Asaph Whittlesey, Richard Fenn, Reuben Beach and Aaron Hine, brother of *Abraham Hine, Peck Fenn and Lemuel Porter.

Though the cherished plan of its founder was to make the township purely and exclusively Congregational in religion, sentiment and government, the effort was a failure. Believers in other faiths, and many non-believers, came to live in Tallmadge, but Congregationalism has remained in the lead.

The church is so perfect an example of New England Church architecture that Life Magazine, November 20, 1944, chose it for a Thanksgiving issue cover as a symbol of "the devout spirit of the New England Puritans who celebrated the first Thanksgiving on December 13, 1621."

TALLMADGE

What Was the Reserve?

from Harlan Hatcher's "Western Reserve"

The charter of the original Connecticut Colony granted it a strip of land about seventy-five miles wide extending from ocean to ocean. In 1786, Connecticut ceded the bulk of her western lands to the Congress but reserved for herself a sizable strip in what is now northern Ohio. It lay between the shore of Lake Erie and the forty-first parallel (just south of present Youngstown.) It ran 120 miles westward from the western boundary of Pennsylvania to a point just beyond Sandusky. This was New Connecticut, Connecticut's Western Reserve.

Excerpt from "A Centennial History of Akron"

During the second decade of the Nineteenth Century, from 1810 to 1820, the settlement of what is now Summit County was rapid. Singly and in groups, the Yankees from New England came to the new country where fortunes were to be made and families to be established. They came over land, driving ox teams, walking and riding horses. They came by boat to Cleveland, followed the Cuyahoga River to the neighborhood of the flourishing little village of Middlebury, now East Akron.

Ohio was admitted to the Union in 1803. During the first half of the decade, the part of the Western Reserve which lies west of the Cuyahoga river was not in the United States but in 1805 the Indians ceded it. The first settlers were mostly from New England and Pennsylvania.

HINE FAMILY

*Thomas Hine, the first of the name in America, had a home lot in Milford, Conn., January 28, 1646. His name is on the Memorial Bridge at Milford. The name is spelled Hind and Hinde as well as Hine. His wife's name was Elizabeth. He had at least ten children (Orcutts History of New Milford p. 711.) He died in Milford about 1696.

The following tradition appears in many writings in regard to him. (Trumbulls History of Conn.; Lamberts History of New Haven; Baldwin Genealogy p. 117; Hollister's History of Conn. Vol. I Page 145) "Some years after Milford was settled by the English (probably 1647 or 1648) a company of Mohawks came within the border of the town and secreted themselves in a swamp, where they awaited an opportunity of making an attack upon the Milford Indians (The Pequots.) Some Englishmen saw the Mohawks and were friendly enough to inform their swarthy neighbors of their danger. They immediately rallied in great numbers, raised the warwhoop, and rushing suddenly upon the Mohawks, gained a complete victory.

Among the prisoners was a stout Mohawk warrior who the captors decided to kill by famine and torture. They stripped him naked, tied him to a stake and left him in the tall grass of the salt meadows to be eaten by the mosquitoes. An Englishman, named Hine, who found the Indian in this deplorable condition, was so shocked at this barbarous mode of torture, that he cut the thongs from the Indian's limbs and set him at liberty.

HINE FAMILY

He then invited the Indian to his house, gave him food, and helped him to escape. This kind act was never forgotten by the Mohawks. They treated the English of Milford ever afterward with marked civility and did many kind and friendly acts that testified to their gratitude toward their "deliverer and his family." (From Hollister's History of Conn. Vol. 1 p. 145 from Lambert.)

"For this act he was held in high regard by the neighboring Indians who said that when Hine or his descendants died, the Great Spirit took them at once to his big wigwam." For this simple act of humanity, Hine was much endeared to the tribe of the rescued Indian, who believed that the Great Spirit would always protect the good white face and his posterity.

HINE FAMILY

The following is a copy of a paper written by Louise (Hine) Metlin, sister of my grandfather, Alvan Alonzo Hine.

“Our Grandmother” (Abigail Elton Hine)

“How well I remember the many visits I made to my grandmother when I was a little child, and watching her as she passed to and fro about her work. How interested I was in seeing her cooking over the coals in the big fireplace, in hanging the big dinner pot on the crane, and watching her make biscuit for supper and baking them in the tin baker placed before the hot coals. How hard it must have been for them, coming into the woods as they did in the early days, with nothing to do with except what they could bring with them in a covered wagon.

Later, when they kept a few sheep and could card the wool, spin the yarn, and weave cloth for a suit of clothes or a woolen dress, how proud they were! For it was the only way they could get clothing for a time.

Money, they had not, or at least it was not plentiful and they were glad when they could raise something to exchange for necessities. I think that when my grandparents came from the east there was no market for anything nearer than Cleveland or Pittsburgh.”

She also wrote:

“Some time between 1820 and 1825, my father, William Hine, settled on this farm and on the back part of the farm was the remains of a beaver dam — and from this the farm was named Beaver Meadow Farm and has been called the same for over one hundred years. I do not know that the name was ever registered. The farm is still owned by the daughter of William Hine, who is now 85 yrs. of age."

Location of grandfather and great grandfather's farms.

The home of my great grandfather, William Hine, was located on the north and south road, extending from the Brimfield Road to the Mogadore Road, about three miles east of the center of Tallmadge. It is on the east side of the road and about one half mile south of the brick house which was owned by my grandparents, Alvan Alonzo and Sarah Jane (Atwood) Hine. Great-grandfather's farm was sold in 1949, five generations of the family having lived there.

Alvan Alonzo and Sarah Jane (Atwood) Hine (my grandparents) moved to Galesburg, Illinois, soon after their marriage, and it was there that the eldest child was born. They then settled in Tallmadge and the only home they ever lived in until after grandfather's death was the brick house that had been built by Abraham Hine (grandfather of Alvan Alonzo Hine) about 1835. The bricks for the house were made on the property.

HINE FAMILY

It was in this brick house, where I was born, that some of the happiest days of my childhood were spent. Only memories now of the large kitchen where grandfather, grandmother and I would sit around the big table in the evening, grandma with her sewing and grandfather with his newspaper, while I was occupied with paper dolls that I had cut from Aunt Lola's fashion magazines, found in a trunk in the storage room above the kitchen. How I loved to prowl in that old attic which contained all sorts of fascinating things.

Other memories are of the enormous key and lock to the south kitchen door, the old open well with bucket and windlass, the stone bird bath near by, grandma's prized moss rose bush that grew at the corner of the house, her rubrum lillies, the old fashioned single yellow rose, the rock garden which she made long before they became so popular. I dimly remember having seen my great grandfather (William Hine) sitting in a rocking chair by the kitchen stove. I probably was about three years of age at that time, and was very much impressed with the cane that he carried.

It was here that grandfather and grandmother reared their family, and I have heard many times of how the nephews and nieces loved to visit "Uncle Lon and Aunt Sarah." The farm was sold after grandfather's death and there have been many changes in the neighborhood but the old house stands as it did many years ago.

HINE FAMILY

(From the Biographical Record of Summit County) Alvan Alonzo Hine was born in 1831 and, at the outbreak of the Civil War, joined the One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Regiment of Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was made Sergeant of his Company and valiantly defended the Union cause. After the conflict was ended, he resumed the occupation of farming which he followed practically his entire life.

*Frank Eugene Hine (my father) built his first home on North-East Road, a short distance from the center of Tallmadge. In the neighborhood lived several other young married couples. Uncle Ed and Aunt Laura Hall, across the street, the Arvid Hinmans, and the Fred Bards who lived in the next two houses west. They all had small children of about the same age and the friendships that were formed in those early years lasted a lifetime.

About 1890, father purchased from Homer S. Carter, the store building which was located on the corner of the South-East road facing the circle, where he and Mr. Charles C. Conaghan conducted a grocery and meat market. The Tallmadge post office was in the same building and Mr. Clement Wright was postmaster for many years.

The first little home was sold and we then moved into the upstairs apartment of the store building when I was about five or six years of age. At that time the building looked very much different than it does now, for it was more in keeping with the residences on the circle, painted white with green shutters on the second floor windows. Father died Aug. 8, 1892. On March 25, 1897, Mr. Conaghan and mother were married, his first wife having died in the year 1885. He d. 1913. 2 dau.s of his former marriage:

Charles C. Conaghan was appointed Tallmadge postmaster, followed by William P. Hine, who was appointed in 1913. Winifred B. Hine was appointed in 1919 and has held the position from that time to the present date. (1951)

Other members of the Hine family that came from Connecticut to Ohio were:

Aaron Hine (brother of my great-great grandfather) born in New Haven, Conn., 1777, son of Abraham and Sarah (Bristol) Hine, removed to Tallmadge, Ohio, 1817. Married at Seymour, Conn., to Bethia Hitchcock. Eleven children, three of whom lived in Ohio.

Family Reunion

Editor Beacon -

Abraham and Abigail Hine with seven children - three sons and four daughters, left Connecticut for Ohio on the twenty-third day of May, 1820. Their team consisted of two yoke of oxen and one horse, which made a good Yankee team and good for the 2500 lbs. of chattel, besides the live weight with which their wagon was laden. The family enjoyed their usual health and nothing occurred while on the road, but such incidents as are common to all emigrants, and they arrived in Tallmadge on the 27th day of June after a journey of 35 days.

HINE FAMILY

The younger members of the family were taken down with the measles the day after their arrival, but soon recovered. The family went to work in earnest, having settled on a wilderness farm of 147 acres. In common with settlers of Tallmadge, who vied with each other in seeing who could clear up the woods the fastest, they did not wish to be out-done by their neighbors. The oldest son left the old home farm in 1823 and commenced on a new farm for himself. Another son left in the spring of 1829, and the last one in the spring of 1833. The oldest daughter married and left in the year of 1828. The next oldest daughter married in 1835. The third daughter married in 1836. The youngest married in 1838.

In the year 1849 Abraham, with Abigail, his wife, visited their home in Connecticut and their other friends in Hartford County, the native home of Abigail (Elton) Hine. They remarked on their return that it seemed to them that the stones had grown to be much larger than they were when they left in 1820. Abraham Hine died on the 14th day of April 1856, ae 81. Abigail died on the 22nd of November 1863, ae 88.

The sons and daughters are all living, and had a re-union at D. A. Hine's in Middlebury, on the 27th day of June, it being fifty years after the arrival of the family in Tallmadge. They are so situated, with the exception of a daughter of one of the sisters, that they can meet together and make a visit and return to their homes on the same day. They talked over the past, and brought to mind many of the scenes which in those early years they have as a family enjoyed — of the hopes, the joys, and some of the sorrows, which they have since experienced. After the repast they were all weighed, the average weight of the family being 156 pounds. The average age is 63 years and 8 months. The average height of the brothers is five feet, nine inches. The average height of the sisters is five feet three inches.

The oldest son, William married Philamelia Root in 1823 and moved onto a new farm adjoining the old farm of which he is now the proprietor.

After a season of prayer and commending themselves to the care of their Heavenly Father, they adjourned to meet again in one year from that day, or those who in the providence of God are spared until that time.

ROOT FAMILY

from Root Genealogy

My great grandmother Hine was Philamelia (Root) Hine, daughter of Samuel and Rebecca (Pritchard) Root.

Family Name

Hon. Eleazer Root writes:

"I have understood that the name was in its original Norman French and spelled Rootes — then Roote and Root. As the members of the family travelled northward in England and westward in America, modifications in spelling have taken place."

Family Characteristics

(Excerpt from Root Genealogy) The combined testimonies of oral and written history make this a substantial family. From their first introduction into this country, the early settlers of this name, although not from the ranks of nobility, but rather plain farmers and weavers of cloth, took a prominent part in all social movements, in the political affairs of the communities where they dwelt, and in securing the welfare of the churches with which they united. The progenitors of the three lines traced out in this volume occupied a good social position among the Puritan settlers as worthy citizens, substantial farmers or skillful manufacturers of domestic goods.

Mr. A. I. Root of Medina, Ohio says:

"The Root family has always been characterized by a great amount of energy and perseverance and great mechanical powers. They have always been in comfortable circumstances as far as this world's goods are concerned."

Rev. Lucius I. Root says:

"My grandfather used to say that he never met a Root that he could trace no relationship with."

Mr. John Root of Buffalo (the 6th John in the descent from John Root of Badby, England) writes:

"John Root of Farmington was from nobility in England. His wife was a descendant of the King's sister."

We are descendants of John Root.

English Records

The first record found in the old parish book of Badby, Northamptonshire, England, examined by Mr. Russell Root of New York, was of the marriage of John Roote and Mary Russel.

John Roote and Mary Russel were married in the year 1600. He lived, and probably died, at Badby. The record of their children runs as follows:

- I Mary bap. at Badby, England, Dec. 31, 1600.
- II Susannah, bap. at Badby, England, Oct. 18, 1603
- III Thomas, bap. at Badby, England, Jan. 16, 1605
- *IV *John, bap. at Badby, England, Feb. 26, 1608

The English records and American traditions are in harmonious accord. The family names on the English list and the names given by John Root of Farmington to his children also serve to indicate the relationship.

ROOT FAMILY

American Records of the Root Family

The very common tradition of three brothers, who came over from the mother country (England) in the early times of New England settlement, has at least proved itself true in the case of that distinct branch of Roots which came to Salem in the year 1635 and 1636. There certainly were three brothers as appears in documentary evidence. Thomas, Josiah and Richard were brothers. The parish records of Badby seem to indicate that they were brothers or near kinsmen of John Root (our ancestor.)

The Root Genealogy was published in 1870 and reads:

"The number of descendants of the name from 4 distinct heads, Josiah, Thomas, John and Richard, whose names were recorded in the Root Genealogy, is over 4,000 and descendants of other names 1500. The whole number of descendants from all the Root progenitors in this country through male and female lines of various names in the 7th & 8th generations may be estimated as at least 100,000 Salem Line, Hartford Line and Farmington Line."

We are descendants of John Root of Farmington, Connecticut. John Roote, believed to be the son of John Roote of Badby Northamptonshire, England, who married Mary Russel in 1600 (and the register of whose children baptized in infancy includes the names of Mary, Susannah, Thomas and John) was born in Badby, according to the parish records, February 26, 1608.

ROOT FAMILY

The following note made by Mr. Jesse Root, who was a school teacher in Berlin, Conn., where his ancestors had lived from generation to generation not many miles distant from the old homestead in Farmington and who, being an invalid for many years, spent some leisure time in investigating the family history, reveals the English origin of the family and has been confirmed by investigations abroad. He writes:

"John Root, our Puritan ancestor, emigrated from a place in England called Badby. His father was deceased and he lived with an uncle and was adopted by this uncle, who was a brother of his father. The uncle was a man of wealth, advanced in years and a zealous opponent of popery, and it is my impression, one of nobility. He insisted that John (our ancestor) should go into the Parliamentary army under Cromwell to fight against Charles I and the Catholics. He chose, rather, to join a company of Puritans who were coming to this country. When he arrived, he came to Farmington and was one of the first settled in 1640. He married Mary Kilbourne about that date." Children:

*The following from Bronson's History of Waterbury, p. 289, shows that our ancestors were not permitted the liberty of sleeping soundly in church, and describes an incident in the life of Mr. *Samuel Root, son of *Caleb Root:

"Mr. Leavenworth had the reputation of being what is called a "plain preacher," not always having the fear of his people before his eyes. He thought it did good to stir them up roughly sometimes.

"He had among his hearers a person of some standing who had the infirmity of sleeping (and probably snoring) in meeting. Thinking, perhaps, to cure the man's weakness, he, on one occasion, stopped suddenly in his discourse and addressing himself to the sleeper said, "Wake up, wake up." The response quickly followed. "I am not asleep any more than you, Parson Leavenworth, so please mind your own business." Of course, a great commotion followed. Some were indignant, others amused.

"Two days after, on the tenth of June, 1760, the delinquent *Samuel Root was arraigned on a grand jury complaint before Thomas Clark for 'profaning the Sabbath or Lord's Day by rude talking in time of public worship, to the disturbance of both minister and congregation, contrary to the law.' The culprit confessed that he did talk etc. The court ordered the guilty party to pay a fine of five shillings and cost of court."

Farmington — town (pop. 4,548.) North Central Connecticut on the Farmington River, S. W. of Hartford. The site was purchased from the Tunix Indians and settled in 1640. John Roote, our ancestor, was one of the first settlers.

Topography of Badby, Northamptonshire, the English home of the Roote Family. (Excerpt from Root Genealogy.)

Badby is two and a half miles from Daventry adjoining. The village stands on the side of a sandy ascent called Badby Downs, and there are numerous springs of water, and quarries of hard blue rag-stone in the neighborhood. Descending the hill, the village is seen spreading along a valley; and combined with the wood and the downs rising immediately in the background, composes a rural landscape in no common degree pleasing and attractive.

Lewis (a writer) speaks of this place as containing 547 inhabitants. On a lofty eminence called Arbury Hill, there is an intrenchment including an area of about ten acres, supposed to have been a Roman Camp. Badby Wood now (in 1870) consists of 180 acres, and is the property of Sir Charles Keightley. The drive from the entrance lodge connects with the farms, a beautiful approach to Fawsley Park. (Fawsley lies south of Badby.) At the time John Roote of Farmington emigrated from Badby, Raphael Heywood B. D. was the rector of the parish, Charles I was King of England, and the great civil war, which resulted in the establishment of the Commonwealth, was impending.

In Baker's History of Northamptonshire, it is stated that Hugh Russell of Thorp Mundeville was grantee of Fawsley in the year 1235. He may have been the ancestor of Mary Russell who m. John Roote of Badby.

While members of the Root family were not transplanted from England to America as early as 1620, they arrived within 15 or 20 years later. They were Puritans, disciplined in the school of severe persecution for conscience sake.

The Congregational Church seems to be the one spoken of most in "The Root Genealogy." I am sure that Captain Samuel Root and his family were members of the Congregational Church of Tallmadge.

Senator, (1909-15) was a figure in the Fisheries Arbitration at the Hague (1910) and was prominent in Republican politics. In 1917, he headed a special mission to Russia. A member of the Hague Tribunal, he was one of the founders of the World Court (1920.) In 1929, he sought to devise a formula for American participation in the Court with reservations. His affiliations were always with the conservative, "big business" interests in the Republican party. Elihu Root is a descendant of Thomas Root b. 1648 — brother of *Caleb Root, our ancestor.

*Philo Atwood b. 1799 (my great grandfather,) the son of Ichabod Atwood, m *Margaret Hall, dau. of David and Jane (Jackson) Hall. They lived in Mogadore, Ohio. The lovely old white home which was built by Philo Atwood is directly opposite the golf course on the Tallmadge, Mogadore road within a very short distance of the business section of the town. Philo Atwood had three wives:

I Margaret (Hall) Atwood, mother of nine children d. Nov. 10, 1855.

II ---- no children.

III Mahala ---- no children.

He d. Mar. 10, 1870 ae 71 yrs.

When remodeling the old Atwood home in Mogadore in the yr 1950, there was found what was thought to have been a slave cellar. Here runaway slaves, who escaped from their masters, were hidden until they could be passed along to the next stop. This system of helping slaves escape was developed by the abolitionists, and was called the "Underground Railway." At one time, when a mantel was being torn out, the names of children were found on the back of the mantel. This information was given to me by Jean (Gerhold) Camp whose uncle and aunt, Mr. & Mrs. Arthur Kemmerline, owned the property for some time. It is now owned by Mr. Kemmerline's brother and occupied by his married dau. and family. I was in the house once during the time it was occupied by the Arthur Kemmerlines.

During the early portions of the Civil War, Ohio was virtually without organized military protection. Hence in many cities and villages of the state, local organizations were effected under the general title of "Home Guards." Summit County furnished three volunteer companies. Many of the early volunteers enlisted in towns other than those in which they resided. Three sons and three sons-in-law of Philo Atwood were listed in the original roster.

III Newton J. Atwood, Springfield

IV David Dressler. Co. A. Akron

V Henry L. Montenyohl. Co. A. Akron

VI Alvan Alonzo Hine. Co. D. 164th. O V I 2nd Sergeant

Company A and Company B became companies G and K of the 19th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. They were all three-months men, called the hundred day men, and when the term of service was over the regiment was mustered out, but was immediately re-organized and served through the remainder of the war.

I have been told by my grandmother, Sarah Jane (Atwood) Hine that she had a cousin named Viall and she often spoke of relatives by the name of Comstock. The following is taken from "Samuel Lane's History of Akron and Summit County."

"George Viall, only child of Thomas C. and Mahala (Atwood) Viall was born in Middlebury (now East Akron) 1834.

At 19, engaged in the grocery business at Old Forge, continuing for a year and a half, then three years in the same business in Middlebury, then three years in Tappan Block, eight years in the stoneware business, and nine years in general merchandise in Middlebury; one of the incorporators and secretary and treasurer of Middlebury Clay Co; then representative of the United States Life Insurance Co. in Akron and vicinity. Three children - one of whom was named Nannie L., Mrs. Frank Comstock of Akron." George Viall's mother probably was a sister of Philo Atwood.

The Historical Society of Chatham, Mass., has in its possession a large bound book which gives the origin of the Atwood family in England. Leora (Hine) Evans writes:

"In touring Cape Cod one summer, there were several instances when we heard the name Atwood mentioned. There is an Atwood Street in Provincetown, and in Wellfleet there had been a grocery operated by Atwoods for many years. In Chatham is located the famous Atwood Homestead built in 1752 and now owned by the Chatham Historical Society."

The following is the story of the Old Atwood House which contains more than 2000 exhibits.

1. The House Historically.
2. The House Architecturally.
3. "Jest Courtin' Talk."
4. The Important Chimney.

I have no records to show that we are connected in any way with the Atwood family of Cape Cod but added the story of the house only because of its interest.

CHATHAM HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Old Atwood House, owned by the Society, contains more than 2000 different exhibits. It is as a guide to a few of them, those of most interest to the average visitor, that these explanatory sheets have been prepared.

1. The House Historically.

This, one of the oldest houses in Chatham, went up in the days (1752) when the men who engineered the job and the neighbors who foregathered to give them a lift at the "raising" were all subjects of His Majesty, King George the Third of England. In that year one Joseph Atwood of Eastham bought 30 acres of farm land in Chatham. He was known as "a navigator of unfrequented parts," staying at home from one voyage for fear of losing his vessel during a period of hostilities between England and France. That was the time he built this house, the timbers being taken from trees on his own land between the site of the house and the Mill Pond at the rear. His descendants for five generations occupied it, the heirs selling it to the Historical society in 1926, said heirs then living at such distance as Beaver, Pennsylvania; Princeton, New Jersey; and Olean, New York. The sale figure was $2000, the value of the share of only one of the heirs. The purchase money was raised locally, a few giving large sums, but the bulk came from small contributions of many home folks. It was the members of the Society, notably the women, who did the work themselves in restoring the mansion to its present condition. The Exhibits are gifts, some loans, from interested persons.

CHATHAM HISTORICAL SOCIETY

2. The House Architecturally.

It will be noted that the house has a gambrel roof as its most unusual feature, this type being seldom known on the Cape in those early days. The early builders ordinarily followed other types. They carried in mind the simple English cottages of Cornwall and Devon, the homelands from whence they came. Three types were erected, the half house, the three quarters, and the double house. Many of these are around about you on the Cape today. In the old Atwood House, the rooms on the first floor consist of the parlor, sitting room, the old kitchen, two bedrooms, buttery, sinkroom and later a new kitchen in the ell. In 1949 a new large room was added and dedicated to the memory of Joseph C. Lincoln, noted author of Cape Cod stories. The second floor is unfinished except for one room which has recently been furnished with old-fashioned furniture. The floor boards downstairs are the original ones; the great width of those in the parlor should be noted as indicating the diameter of the trees on the place from which they were taken. Visiting architects find it interesting to copy the rare spearhead design at the top of the pilasters in the entrance frame of the front door. The new kitchen in the ell was built in 1833, and has attached to it the interesting story told in the next paragraph.

3. "Jest Courtin' Talk."

In 1832 one John Atwood married his second wife, Margery Smith of Chathamport. It was said that his persuasion was freighted with a promise to build her a new house. The trusting maiden waited until the knot was tied and then raised the question about that new house, to which John replies, "Oh, that was just courtin' talk." But he did build a small addition. So Margery spent the rest of her life in that hot ell of a kitchen and never became mistress of a modern mansion. You can see a large crayon portrait of her on the wall of the kitchen ell over the mantel. From her stern features you may well believe that she once stood up in church society meeting, when women were not allowed to vote and said "Well, I'm the oldest member of this church, and I have something to say." And she said it. It was somewhat embarrassing just then for her nephew who happened to be moderator of the meeting.

4. The Important Chimney.

The center of old New England houses was ever the chimney, the literal center of the building, and also the center of family life and industry. So in the old Atwood house we find a central structure of brick, probably, although not proven, of English-made brick, held together with a mixture quite different from our modern mortar. Into this open four fireplaces and a brick oven. The one in the parlor is as built; the andirons were owned by Margery Atwood. In the sitting room there was added, after the first erection, an iron frame with brass trimmings known as a Franklin fireplace, which did economize heat, and the top of which was convenient to keep things warm on; later still this was bricked in to provide for a stove. Upstairs there is a shallow fireplace in the one finished room. But it is the kitchen fireplace which holds the greatest interest. There hangs a swinging crane on whose long arm are hung several heavy iron kettles which suggest long hours of stewing and boiling in preparing food. Among them is a small Dutch oven which is a kettle with short feet and an iron cover. This could be set among the coals, food placed in it, and then over the cover were put more live coals thus providing a baking procedure for small amounts of food. On the hearth are various household implements with more in the cupboard at the left.

At one side is the old brick oven shut out of sight by a wooden door, its inner side showing the effects of being closed while the bricks were still hot. About once a week this oven was heated by having a fire built in it; usually special hard wood was saved for this purpose. When the bricks were heated to the right point coals and ashes were shovelled out and placed in the opening under the oven. Then into the oven were placed the things to be baked; those which needed the hottest fire went first, the deft hands of mistress and children preparing a new load to be put in directly after the first was baked, until at last the pot of beans and the brown bread went in to use the remaining heat. On the tables stood an array of pies, cookies, bread and other things to last the family for a week, or if in the winter-time, even a longer period, for in the winter pies could be made in quantity and frozen, thus keeping for weeks if not needed. This saved much time for the spinning and weaving which must be accomplished.

CHATHAM HISTORICAL SOCIETY

There are no iron doors to close the oven in the old Atwood House. In such cases a piece of metal was used propped in place by the handle of the shovel or long poker. Also used was a tin affair like that which sits on the hearth, a sort of hood with a handle, this same hood serving on the hearth to deflect heat either to or from food. Next to the brick oven is the stairway door, the same showing a patch in the lower corner matched by a patch in one riser on the stairs. This covers the cat hole which had been cut to allow the cat to get under the house and catch the rats and mice which sought the heat of the chimney for their nests. Their burrows would undermine the hearth.

HALL FAMILY

* John Andrew Hall

My grandfather, John Andrew Hall, son of David and Margaret (Hindman) Hall was born in 1832 d. 1916. Married 1st Agnes Manso b. 1835 d. 1862, married 2nd Ann Ralston b. September 12, 1833. He lived in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, about half way between Worthington and Slate Lick. The old home has been occupied by members of the family until a few years ago.

Slate Lick - Armstrong Co. Pennsylvania
(From Slate Lick Reunion 1887)

Just where to draw the boundary line of Slate Lick is a difficult question. It has never been definitely determined where that line should run, and it has ever been a changing one. Slate Lick proper is reached by roads converging from all directions. About six or seven miles distant, in a southerly direction, is the town of Freeport. In a north-easterly course, about eight or nine miles distant, is Kittanning, the county seat of Armstrong County.

All early settlements in the country seem to have had their centers, around which the settlers gathered and from which the settlements radiated in different directions. Such a center was Slate Lick. The source of attraction to this particular spot was a deer lick after which the community took its name.

A large portion of the land in this county was known as "Depreciation land." It consisted of a large tract, appropriated by the assembly of the Commonwealth in 1783, for the redemption of "Depreciation Certificates," certificates issued to the soldiers of the American Revolution, in payment of services to the country and which had greatly depreciated in value.

The early settlers were largely Irish or Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. David Hall, our ancestor, was one of these settlers.

From "Early Recollections of our Home." David Hall D. D. (my grandfather's brother) writes of a round-log cabin where father, as a boy, and grandfather lived, and whence he went on his Indian Expedition to Ohio in 1812, resulting strangely in the migration of almost the whole Hall clan to the Western Reserve.

HALL FAMILY

Marion in 1876, aged 85 yrs.

Early Settlement of Springfield Township

The township was surveyed by Gen. Simon Perkins for the Connecticut Land Company in 1806. About 1807, Reuben Tupper, Nathan Moore, Benjamin Baldwin, John Hall 2nd. (father of John J. Hall of Akron and son of David and Jane (Jackson) Hall) and his younger brother James Hall came to Springfield. The three former were from Connecticut and the two latter, of Scotch-Irish descent, came from Pennsylvania. An uncle, Robert Hall, and his family, came the same year. Robert also had a son, John. John Hall 2nd and his brother James built a cabin and settled upon a farm about half a mile east of the center of town. The uncle and his family located on a farm on the Akron-Mogadore Road.

Singular family coincidence: The first death in the township is said to have been that of Robert Hall in 1808, the first birth was that of a daughter (Jane Hall) to Mrs. Hall after the death of her husband in 1809, and the first marriage in the township, that of John Hall, son of Robert to Miss Margaret Blair in 1810.

Pioneer Privations

At the time Springfield began to be settled, flour and other family supplies were very scarce, and procurable only from a great distance, so that the pioneers had to depend largely on the wild game of the forest and the fish in the streams and lakes for subsistence, until they could raise crops. Even the right to this wild game was disputed largely by the Indians that still lingered in the neighborhood.

It is related that because of this feeling, John and James Hall, the first summer of their stay in Springfield, used to sleep in their cornfield at night, one watching while the other slept, rather than remain in their cabin.

As neighbors accumulated, this timidity gradually wore off and finally ended entirely with the departure of the redskins to ally themselves with the British Army in the War of 1812. Springfield's original church was Presbyterian. Among the names listed on the Springfield Roll of Honor in the War of the Rebellion are Newton J. Atwood, R. W. Hall, J. S. Hall, L. E. Hall, Warren R. Hall, Albert Hall, Luther Hall.

David Hall III

My grandfather Hall's brother David was a Presbyterian Minister. He entered Jefferson College at Canonsburg, Pa., at the age of sixteen, then Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa., in the fall of 1851 remaining the full term of three years. He was licensed by the Presbytery of Allegheny in 1854. He also spent a term at Princeton Theological Seminary. His first pastoral call was as co-pastor in Columbus, Ohio, then Union and Brady's Bend, Armstrong Co., Pa.

In 1867 he accepted a call to the church in Mansfield, Ohio, until 1874 when a call to Indiana, Pa., brought him back to his native state.

He spent the latter part of his life in Baltimore, Md. d. 1915 at 88 yrs.

A list of teachers in public or select schools is given in the Slate Lick book — arranged by decades and among them are:

1810 to 1820 David Hall Sr. John Hall Jr.

1840 to 1850 John Boyd (husband of Jane Hall), James Hall, and David Hall (Rev.)

Edwin Hall (mother's brother) son of *John Andrew Hall was a Presbyterian Minister and teacher of music in Maryville College, Tennessee. Ruth Hall Sarver, dau. of Howard Hall and Mary Emma Croft Hall, teacher until married. Celia Noble, dau.of Harry and Flora (Hall) Noble, teacher. Harriet Dressler, grand daughter of Margaret (Hall) Atwood, teacher in Akron Schools for many years. Flora (Hall) Noble was a teacher of music (Piano.)

Of the early settlers of 1792 to 1810 in the vicinity of Slate Lick and Worthington to the Butler County Line were the following names:

Robert Fleming - great grandmother Manso was Margaret Fleming Thomas Hindman - great grandmother Hail was Margaret Hindman.

David Hall - our ancestor

John Jackson Jr. - who may have been a relative of *Jane Jackson Hall, wife of * David Hall.

My great grandfather, David Hall Jr., joined the Presbyterian Church when very young and spent most of his life in Slate Lick.

My grandmother, Agnes Manso Hall, died in the year 1862 leaving grandfather with three small children. He could not leave his family to go to war so hired a substitute to go in his place, which was not uncommon in those days.

Mother was six years of ae at the time of grandmother's death. There were two younger children, so she lived with her father's sister Jane (Hall) Boyd for a time and then with her uncle David's family at the time that they were living in Mansfield, Ohio. She attended school in Mansfield.

HALL FAMILY

From Slate Lick Reunion - pub. 1887

"Forty years ago the idea of putting a lady in charge of a school was considered preposterous. It was thought that no woman could manage a winter school. About thirty five years ago the experiment was tried. The teacher was a little girl from Slate Lick (Jane Jackson Hall), dau. of David and Margaret (Hindman) Hall. The school was composed of children from Buffalo Furnace and Craig's Factory. It had an enrollment of 125 names and an average attendance of 75. The alphabet class numbered 20 little tots, some of whom could neither speak or understand a word of English. However, the children were taught and learned their letters in English and the teacher vindicated her sex from the charge of not being capable of managing a winter school."

*Jane (Jackson) Hall (from mother's records)

*Jane (Jackson) Hall (My great great grandmother) came to this country from Ireland when she was ten years of age, and was married to *David Hall in 1781, when only sixteen.

*David Hall was an officer in the Revolutionary War. Mrs. Archibald Hall writes that the family is eligible for membership in the D. A. R., Colonial Dames, etc.

The farm in Pennsylvania, where my grandfather *John Andrew Hall lived, never belonged to anyone but members of the Hall family, and the one next to it was part of the original farm and on it was the house in which *David Jr. and *Margaret (Hindman) Hall raised their family.

When I was a young girl, studying American History, my mother told me that our family was related to Gen. Andrew Jackson, who became President of the United States. Leora (Hine) Evans also had been told the same story, and while there are no records available, it seems plausible but not confirmed. In 1765 Andrew Jackson, the father of Pres. Andrew Jackson emigrated with his wife and two sons from Carrickfergus, in the north of Ireland to S. Carolina. His sons were named Hugh and Robert, Andrew was not yet born. He was of Scottish origin, but his ancestors had lived for five generations in the neighborhood of Carrickfergus; lowly, honest people; tillers of the soil and weavers; Presbyterians in religion. (From Makers of American History.) Samuel Jackson a brother of Andrew Sr. – afterward established himself in Philadelphia, where he long lived, a respectable citizen, and later another brother came and settled in New York.

I have not been able to place Mrs. Archibald Hall. Her husband may have been a descendant of James Hall.

CONCLUSION

My original purpose in writing this book was to give to my children and grandchildren their direct line of ancestry in this country. In collecting material for the genealogy, I found so much of interest that I decided to write the history of the seven branches of the family. If members of the different families find their pedigrees omitted or imperfect, it will not be because efforts have not been made to obtain the needed information concerning the lines of descent.

Ours is a typical American family. More than 200 yrs. elapsed from the time that John Root and his wife Mary (Kilbourne) Root came from England to this country, she in 1635, he in 1640, to the time that David E. Thomas came from Glamorganshire, South Wales. They were pioneers in a new country and we should be proud of the courage of our forefathers, who came to America from distant lands so long ago.
